Elkann, Alain. Born, like the Futurist Marinetti, of Italian parents in the cosmopolitan Egyptian seaport of Alexandria, Ungaretti studied in Paris where among his friends were the avant-garde poet Guillaume Apollinaire and the painters Pablo Picasso and Georges Braque.

How could the Italian audience have reacted to such a blatant exhibition of form? It is a kind of grandiose baptism, with which the new architecture—born in offices and among polemics—has become popular and official. Felice, Costantino. Length: pages. Milano: Bompiani. Thank you for your feedback.
