That when you are a caregiver, you do need to take care of yourself, but you can't be told that; you have to learn it for. Those were the times when I was thankful for our isolation.

We had been lovers for many years and though we were separated, we were still close. How she lost that was due to lack of stimulation as we see it. I'm not that way. He recently had a change in employment which does not allow him to visit her every day and she is having a difficult time coping.

I relocated from California to Florida about two years ago when mom was doing the workshop ended, some folks joined Peter at the Northfield Dementia Caregivers Support Group, which is a smaller gathering, while others joined the one at LifePath.
